

AjPHA National Directors

Congratulations on your decision to campaign to represent the American Junior Paint Horse Association! We are excited you want to be more involved in your AjPHA experience and have the desire to play an active role in the rule and decision-making processes of the American Junior Paint Horse Association.

Being an AjPHA National Director is a fun experience, but also a serious one. These elected individuals represent the fourteen zones of AjPHA and every member who resides within them. National Directors represent AjPHA's parent organization, the American Paint Horse Association, which is the most important.

NATIONAL DIRECTORS

AjPHA National Directors represent their state, province, or country. They are responsible for directing association business, including voting on by-law changes and electing the AjPHA Executive Committee. National Directors meet annually at the AjPHA National Convention, held in conjunction with the AjPHA World Championship Show, and are asked for input on association activities throughout the year.

How to become a National Director:

1. Get involved! Be an active AjPHA member in good standing, age 17 years or younger as of January 1 of the year you will take office.
2. Get nominated! Your AjPHA or APHA Regional Club may nominate you using the Regional Club Nomination Form, or you may nominate yourself by submitting an Individual Nomination Form. Nominations must be postmarked by December 1st.
3. Get elected! Ballots are sent to all AjPHA members in your state/province/country on February 1st and results become official on March 31st.

Additional Duties of National Directors:

As a member of the Leadership Team of the American Junior Paint Horse Association, the first and foremost objective is for you to be an ambassador for what AjPHA stands for.

Youth Directors are elected during the annual AjPHA Convention, held during the Youth World Championship Paint Horse Show each year.

For additional information and application process please contact the Director of Youth Activities.
